

Violent programming DOES affect children negatively. But rather than ban it, make it easier for parents to identify which programs may offend and easier to block them on their own equipment.